

Inspector finds rodent floating in sink in South Florida bakery

December 04, 2017

NORTH MIAMI, Fla. - An inspector found a live rodent floating in a sink with food storage containers at Cayard's Bakery in North Miami last week.

Records also show a roach infestation and a "stop sale" was ordered for food that was found to be out of temperature.

This is the second time this bakery has been ordered shut. State records show Cayard's was also ordered shut in April 2015.

Rodent activity was also found Claudie B in Florida City.

Rodent gnaw marks were found on boxes of muffin mix and a box of pancake mix.

Roach activity was found at the Waffle House on Powerline Road in Fort Lauderdale.

A "stop sale" was ordered on sausage and hash browns due to dripping water.

"We apologize to our customers and associates for letting them down, and assure them we are working hard to deliver the experience they deserve," a Waffle House representative said in an email to Local 10 News. "Our local management is working with our corporate food safety team to ensure all measures are corrected. Delivering a quality and safe experience is a responsibility we take very seriously, and we are working hard to build back the trust with our customers."

Two places in the Florida Key's Outlet Marketplace were also ordered shut last week due to roach issues.

Below is a list of all the places ordered shut last week and some of their violations. All the places mentioned have been allowed to re-open following an ordered clean up and re-inspection.
